The American Triumvirate
The Bolshevik Mistake
Women Wisely Severe
New Sky Record
By Arthur Brisbane

Mr. Harding compares Roosevelt with Washington and Lincoln, putting those three in the "great American triumvirate." Others later will name great American triumvirates, Washington and Lincoln will be among the three, the third will change from time to time.

President Harding's triumvirate is interesting because it is printed beside a Theodore Roosevelt diary, in which "delay, stupidity, no management, no head, no energy, no intelligence, no plans, no staff, no system in college, wildest confusion prevalent, etc.," express Roosevelt's opinion of the United States War Department and officials generally.

The conditions that Roosevelt saw in the Spanish War led up to and encouraged the profligating in billions, the utter inefficiency of the flying machine and other departments in the big war. It is President Harding's business to make sure that the conditions Roosevelt saw no longer exist and that his adjectives are out of date.

Socialists of the Third International, the Bolshevik brand, admit that Bolshevism is in danger and has been compelled temporarily to compromise with CAPITAL. The difficulty with theoretical Bolshevism is its refusal to recognize facts as old as human beings, especially the fact that what a man does he does to ACQUIRE PROPERTY. He works for himself.

From the bow and arrow to the seventy-mile gas from the bright brass beads to the safety vault full of bonds, men have struggled to GET SOMETHING. They have cleared and cultivated land because they were allowed to OWN it. They have raised families because they were allowed to GET FAMILIES. They have been in some other plan, but no one has found it.

In the Aristotle case the prosecutor trying to punish a man accused of killing a woman is misled by the common. This amuses you if you don't know women, haven't studied their history.

It means that women have improved each other by their severity.

Woman will stand a great deal from a man, forgive almost anything. She has made her own sex far superior to men by demanding of women everything and forgiving nothing. That is the wisdom of PROVIDENCE.

Lieutenant McCready flew up 40,000 feet, seven and three-quarters miles. Up there the temperature, 60 degrees below zero, caused his engine to DIE. He glided down safely, sliding down hill on the air without an engine going, and established a new record for high flying on this earth.

He wore a fur suit heated throughout by electricity on his flight up into the space where the lightning lives. That amazed the world. It will seem the simplest thing in the world a little later, when the big airships will travel five miles or more above the earth sending passengers down with smaller ships, not coming down themselves except rarely for important repairs.

In that future day men will go up to the low temperature heights to dress out disease germs. GO UP EIGHT MILES AND KILL YOUR COLD will be the doctor's advice.

New York's electric show exhibits the various uses of electricity that once frightened the clouds and now acts as his slave in a thousand machines.

With electricity you can cool a room and heat it, carry things, sharpen knives, sweep the floor, wash the clothes, rock the baby, electrocute rabbits in Australia, shock burglars anywhere, talk without wires in different parts of your dwelling, the whole tendency is toward an age in which man's hardest work will be pressing a button.

By and by some Marconi will announce the successful transmission of power without wires and that will permanently solve the flying machine question.

WIDOWS OF VICTIMS

Male Companions Swim Ashore After Craft Overturns in River Near Turners Falls

By International News Service
Greenfield, Sept. 30.—Two women were drowned in the Connecticut River, about a mile from Turners Falls, today, when a row-boat capsized.

The victims were Mrs. Alice Johnson of Greenfield and Mrs. Bertha M. McDermott of Boston, both widows. Their companions, Wallace Cabard and Edward Laitman, both of Turners Falls, succeeded in making the shore.

The accident occurred in a section of the river known as the Narrows early this morning. The party went out on the river to a camp last night.

PENNSYLVANIA HOUSES UNROOFED IN BIG GALE
Pittsburgh, Sept. 30.—A sudden and violent storm, accompanied by a fifty-mile-an-hour gale, and a 15-degree drop in temperature, swept over the Pittsburgh district at 7 a. m. today.

The gale, sweeping in the hurricane type, swept over a large area and heavy damage resulted in Pittsburgh, Allegheny and neighboring counties. Many buildings were unroofed in Washington county.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 30.—A gale, accompanied by rain, swept Western New York today, doing heavy damage. Chimneys leveled and scores of windows were smashed. The bodies of two men were lifted from their trucks and blown into a field at North Tonawanda.

LAWRENCE MAN HELD IN DEATH OF TWO SONS
Providence, Sept. 30.—Louis Baumer, thirty-eight years old, formerly of Lawrence, Mass., was arrested here today by Judge Gorham here today, charged with the murder of his two sons, Francis, eleven years old, and Leonard, nine years old, who were found without a trace after being taken to this city with his sons. The boys were last found dead in a field at North Tonawanda.

GIRL ACCUSED IN TWO ARRESTED
BAD CHECK CASE IN HOTEL
SURRENDERS MURDER

Nativity, arrived in a ledge north wall, with a thin little against the wall and a smart velvet hat, not justly on her greatly coiffed hair, also Dorothy Harrington, of Cambridge, former Boston University law student, today on a charge of larceny of $10 by means of a bad check today.

Accompanied by her attorney, Thomas Cullen, Miss Harrington went to the Braintree Square police station, gave herself up to Sergeant Joseph Kelley and a few moments later was arraigned before Judge Stone. She pleaded not guilty and was released to go on her own recognizance.

Her case was continued until October 11.

The charge to which Miss Harrington pleaded today is a second in a series which, her attorney declares, will all be explained satisfactorily and of which she will ultimately be cleared.

First in the series which has caused the attractive young woman was that of larceny of $100 from George Koury of Hudson by means of fraud. This it is alleged she obtained while employed as a real estate salesman by Anton Roussin, in a transaction with Roussin.

5,500,000 UNEMPLOYED IN UNITED STATES

Washington, Sept. 30.—The army of unemployed in the United States number 5,500,000, according to a revised estimate today by the commission on statistics of President Harding's administration.

The commission will issue a proclamation calling upon the nation to bend its efforts to meet the unemployment situation, when the unemployment conference here has finally adopted a program, it was learned today.

STEAM TRAWLER IN CRASH IS BEACHED

Halifax, N. S., Sept. 30.—The steam trawler Saint, bound into New Brunswick, N. S., with 100,000 pounds of fish from a week's trip to the Banks, struck near Cape Sable today and on being refloated was found to be leaking so badly that she had to be beached fourteen miles from New Brunswick. Her officers and crew are still stranded.

SEE FOR VISING OF PASSPORTS CUT TO $1

Portland, Me., Sept. 30.—The $10 fee for visiting passports for Alaska was cut to $1 by the public prosecutors in all departments of France, ordering them to take action against all principals and accomplices in deeds which result in deaths or wounds. The ministry demands severe penalties be inflicted.

FRENCH MINISTRY PUTS BAN ON DUELS

Paris, Sept. 30.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Ministry of Justice has sent a circular to the public prosecutors in all departments of France, ordering them to take action against all principals and accomplices in deeds which result in deaths or wounds. The ministry demands severe penalties be inflicted.

ACCUSED OF SELLING LIQUOR TO OFFICERS

Quincy, Ill., Sept. 30.—The sale of four quarts of whiskey to Special Officer Coleman of the Bank Bay Station, Robert C. Crookman of Washington street was held in the Quincy District Court today in the $1000 fine hearing October 7.

HOT SEARLES WAS TRAPPED BY BLACKMAIL GANG REVEALED

The Boston American today publishes the real story of the trapping of Albert Victor Searles, millionaire Boston artist, which resulted in the payment of $50,000 to William J. Corcoran, Boston lawyer and former district attorney of Middlesex County.

The shakedown of Searles was one of the most carefully planned of a long series of blackmail transactions that have been worked on prominent Bostonians during the past few years. Nothing was left to chance. But the husband of Blue Paul, one of the women used in the case, was forgotten.

Paul says he received $5,000 from Corcoran and it was the discovery of the fact that the sum of $50,000

PROMINENT VICTIMS PAID THOUSANDS TO ESCAPE PUBLICITY

Boston's Blackmail Ring has been shattered.

As a result of an exhaustive investigation, which can now be made public the Boston American is able to make a positive statement to this effect.

It is also able to reveal the nefarious ramifications of this gang, one of the most vicious in the history of any city, whose members for years have fattened on human frailties and extorted millions of dollars.

The Boston American's investigators have obtained conclusive evidence showing that the operations of the blackmailers were of astounding scope, far exceeding anything that has thus far been revealed.

PROMINENT VICTIMS PAID LARGE SUMS FOR SILENCE

Men of prominence from all parts of the country, some with international reputations, have fallen into the clutches of the gang in the past ten years, have paid large sums to avoid publicity, and have suffered in silence.

Guided by trained legal minds, the blackmailers have trapped their wealthy victims through the age-old lure of female charmers, who readily lent themselves to the de-basing designs of their unscrupulous employers, in some cases for a mere pittance.

Men in all walks of life were "shaken down" after being "framed," in some cases as small a sum as $4,500 being accepted, the theory being that everything was grist which came to the mill of the gang.

No method was too vile to be employed in snaring a victim, and the innocent at times were forced to pay as well as the guilty. The gang even "shook down" their own women when the latter had acquired what was considered too much money.

LEGAL PROFESSION HURT BY GANG'S ACTIVITIES

The proceeds from the infamous tactics of the blackmailers were divided according to "merit" and standing of the members of the gang, and in the case of the majority were spent in riotous living.

Stories began to circulate, and at length the activities of the blackmailers, "down with insolence and wine," who litter.

COAL TAX WOULD TOP 8 MILLION, HULTMAN SAYS

Attorneys-General Begin Drive to Compel Defeat of Law
in Pennsylvania

New England and New York, lately dependent upon Pennsylvania for their supply of anthracite coal, will be obliged to pay a tax in excess of $8,000,000 a year and many of the great industries will be seriously crippled unless the Pennsylvania law is defeated, according to Chairman Eugene C. Hultman of the State Commission on the Necessaries of Life in a statement yesterday.

Bolt Destroys "Baby Blimp" at Wright Flying Field

Dayton, O., Sept. 30.—The "Baby Blimp," pride of McCook Field, was destroyed by a terrific explosion at 2:30 o'clock today. The explosion was caused by a bolt of lightning.

The banger at Wilbur Wright Field, where the new acquisition to Uncle Sam's air force was housed, was wrecked. No one was injured, due to the hour at which the lightning struck.

The blimp was built at Akron by the Goodyear Company.

Coal law is defeated, according to Chairman Eugene C. Hultman of the State Commission on the Necessaries of Life in a statement yesterday. Hultman's statement was made at the close of the conference of attorneys-general and their decision to attempt to derive a way to attack the constitutionality of the Pennsylvania law.

Hultman said that in the last big year, New England received $2,000,000 of hard coal and New York $1,500,000, all of which came from Pennsylvania.

The Keystone State has imposed taxes amounting to 35 per cent. on every ton of coal mined in that State.

"If the tax imposed by the State of Pennsylvania is not defeated," said Hultman, "there is nothing to prevent this tax being increased by the State of Pennsylvania, and a tax being levied upon bituminous coal, which will practically mean the confiscation of our industries."

PROBES ESCAPE FROM DEER ISLAND

Commissioner O'Brien, Not Blaming Harlow, Says Breaks
by Prisoners Must Stop

Thomas C. O'Brien, Institutions Commissioner, today started an investigation into the escape from the Deer Island Prison yesterday of Thomas Sharkey, who had served one month of a one year sentence for larceny.

Later he announced that Sharkey had slipped away from his guards and, taking advantage of a heavy fog, was believed to have hidden somewhere on the island.

It was impossible, he added, for the prisoner to have crossed Shirley Gut, as had been believed, as there was an unusually high tide and swift current at the time Sharkey had been missed, and that since then the guards had been constantly on the alert.

Asked if any blame attached to any of the Deer Island officials for the escape of Sharkey, O'Brien said that a number of others within the last week or ten days, Commissioner O'Brien said.

"I do not know George M. Harlow, master of Deer Island, responsible for this break," he said. "So far I have not detected where the responsibility lies. Harlow, it will be remembered, was reprimanded some days ago for having permitted the previous escapes."

"Some definite steps will have to be taken to avoid a repetition of this sort of thing."

Guests Arrive and Drive Buses
Burglars Away From One
Residence

Two successful breaks, in which the lost amounted to between $7,000 and $10,000, were reported by the residents of the wealthy Myrtle Lake region of Winchester today. Another attempted break was frustrated by the unexpected arrival of guests, who frightened the would-be thieves away before they succeeded in entering the houses.

The first house looted was that of Jere A. Downs, which adjoins the Winchester Country Club, overlooking Myrtle Lake.

Downs and his sister, Miss Elizabeth J. Downs, were out last night and left the house in charge of a maid. On their return they discovered the maid reading in the sitting room and everything apparently peaceful.

BORDA MARRIED FOR MONEY, SAYS MRS. SPRAGUE

Porto Rican Planter Admitted
He Never Loved Wife, Her
Sister Asserts

Providence, R. I., Sept. 30.—Evidence showing that Vincenza Borda, Porto Rican planter and attorney, married Mrs. Aviva Wood Borda for her money, and that he did not love her was produced when the hearing on Mrs. Borda's cross petition for divorce was resumed before Judge J. Jerome Hann.

The evidence was uncovered in the reading of a deposition made by Mrs. Inez Sprague of Paris, France, a sister of Mrs. Borda. In her deposition Mrs. Sprague said that she was always opposed to her sister marrying Borda and that she did all she could to prevent it.

"Did you ever ask Borda why he married your sister?" was asked in the direct testimony read from her deposition.

"Yes and I opposed the marriage from the beginning," was the answer. "I told you ask Borda this?"

"CHARGE OF NO WIFE."
"One time when he and I were sitting in a New York cafe and we were talking things over," she said. "You were perfectly right, I never loved your sister, but I shall always feel grateful to her."

"You said that Borda told her that, because he knew she was opposed to the marriage and because he knew she thought he married her to get her money," she said. "He had told him so before the marriage and during the dinner, she accused him of not treating her sister 'as he should'."

The deposition went on to say that Mrs. Sprague felt Borda was marrying her sister for her money because a friend of the family who lived in Paris told her that Borda had been to her and asked her who had been the cause of the divorce. Both of the sisters denied their guilt, declaring that they had come from Paris and had gone at once to the Army and Navy Y. M. C. A.

According to Torrence, McNair and the two sisters entered the hotel during the evening and went to the desk to register. When the sisters declared they had no money, Torrence said, drew a roll of bills from his pocket and asked for a room for the three. The Navy and Army Y. M. C. A. gave the address as "1, N. Y."

Torrence said the sisters departed through a side exit early in the morning. Torrence's assistant, the clerk, hurried to the room and forced an entrance.

McNair's body was lying across the door. On the dresser were three empty whiskey bottles.

Death was pronounced due to a blow on the head, apparently made by a blunt instrument.

The body was stripped, the arms were tied together with a towel, the legs bound at the ankles with a sheet, part of which had been ripped off and used as a gag in the man's mouth.

been employed there since his return from the war, where he served for twenty months, going over with the first Harvard hospital unit. He was thirty-two years old.

According to Torrence, the murdered man, when he registered, drew a $50 bill and $5 bill from his pocket and paid for the room with the $5. And it was said that when one of the sailors was searched $12 was found on his person. Both of the sailors denied their guilt, declaring that they had come from Paris and had gone at once to the Army and Navy Y. M. C. A.

EX-KING LUDWIG GOES TO ESTATES IN HUNGARY

Dudapest, Sept. 30.—Former King Ludwig of Bavaria and his family have arrived at Barvar, Western Hungary, for what is expected to be a long stay.

Extensive family estates and a splendid castle are located there. Barvar is near Buda-Pest, still reported to be the centre of Royalist activities.

Belgium TO GET GOLD MARKS FROM GERMANY

Paris, Sept. 30.—(By the Associated Press.)—Johannes H. Boyden, the American member of the Reparations Commission, who was asked by the Allied Supreme Council to pass upon whether Belgium debts to the allies, to be paid by Germany under the peace treaty, should be repaid at the rate of exchange on the dates of the loans or at present rates, today delivered his judgment, which was that the calculations should be made on the gold mark rate of November 11, 1918.

Under Mr. Boyden's judgment Belgium will receive more than $2,000,000,000 and more instead of less than $1,000,000,000, which she would have received had the proposal of her allies been accepted.

Belgium TO GET GOLD MARKS FROM GERMANY

Paris, Sept. 30.—(By the Associated Press.)—Johannes H. Boyden, the American member of the Reparations Commission, who was asked by the Allied Supreme Council to pass upon whether Belgium debts to the allies, to be paid by Germany under the peace treaty, should be repaid at the rate of exchange on the dates of the loans or at present rates, today delivered his judgment, which was that the calculations should be made on the gold mark rate of November 11, 1918.

Under Mr. Boyden's judgment Belgium will receive more than $2,000,000,000 and more instead of less than $1,000,000,000, which she would have received had the proposal of her allies been accepted.

EX-KING LUDWIG GOES TO ESTATES IN HUNGARY

Dudapest, Sept. 30.—Former King Ludwig of Bavaria and his family have arrived at Barvar, Western Hungary, for what is expected to be a long stay.

Extensive family estates and a splendid castle are located there. Barvar is near Buda-Pest, still reported to be the centre of Royalist activities.

MEN'S CLOTHING WASTE YEARLY $240,000,000

Committee Sees Chance for Great Saving; Calls for National Advertising

By Associated Press

New York, Sept. 28.—Annual savings of 40 per cent, or about $240,000,000, could be made in the men's ready-made clothing industry, with its yearly output of around $600,000,000, declared a report by the American Engineering Council's committee on elimination of waste in industry, made public today.

The report, based on a national investigation of the industry, asserted that management and labor alike were responsible for the enormous waste.

Principal shortcomings, industrial lack of standardization of appliances, conditions, work content and method, and inefficient planning, were given as the chief sources of waste.

"The most fundamental cause of waste," it was added, "is the traditional, fear-inspired, order-creating, order-keeping, which expresses itself in wide variety, and its attendant make-to-order basis of manufacturing."

What seems to be needed, asserted the committee, is that each manufacturer limit the number of models and cloth styles and adopt vigorous, positive saving methods backed by effective national advertising.

DUMAINE SILENT ON QUESTIONS WIFE ASKS

Mill Treasurer Refuses to Disclose Income or His Present Mode of Living

If Mrs. Elizabeth Dumaïne had hopes of finding out the extent of luxury with which her devoted husband, Frederick C. Dumaïne, treasurer of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company, surrounds himself and then comparing it with the hard-earning which she declares she is meeting in trying to support her seven children on the mere pittance of $320.32 a month, she is doomed to disappointment; that is, unless the master appointed by the court to hear her plea for more alimony orders so.

REFUSES TO ANSWER.

For the series of interviews that she has had with her former husband, the millionaire manufacturer returns a laconic answer, to most of them, of "I refuse to answer until further orders of the court."

Mrs. Dumaïne, declaring that the children of the artisan die young because they do not have advantages that the children of the affluent do, insists that she be given more than the $320.32 a month for the care of her seven children.

"Many children are killed by love," said Mrs. Dumaïne recently in an interview that drew a thrill from rich and poor alike. "The children of the affluent," she went on, "are healthy because they are not cold."

And to see that her children are brought up in such a manner that they may have the "advantages" that she insists are their birthright, Mrs. Dumaïne flung her long series of questions at her husband.

ASKS ABOUT SERVANTS.

"Do you employ servants?" was one question.

"I refuse to answer," replied Mr. Dumaïne.

"Are you maintaining one or more homes?"

Again refusal.

"Are you the owner of any auto or autos?"

Laconic refusal once more, and so on through "What was the expense of your home from 1916 to 1917?" "State the sources of your income from 1918, 1919 and 1920?" "State what gifts and transfers of real estate from 1918 to the present date you have made?" "Are you director of any corporation?" and "What is the location of such corporation?"

Taking the lead in society and civic life, Mrs. Dumaïne has looked for the interests of many years, back in 1915 she carried a banner in the office victory parade in Boston.

YOUNG TRULY, WHERE U BUY THE BEST.

WIFE, 3 TIMES WED, DENIES SECOND HUSBAND IS FATHER OF CHILD

A LA FRANCAISE! Extra news this black-headed beauty, with sparse feathers ascending down over crown and brow, is one of the smartest offered midway this season. Its richness of effect is largely due to its exquisite simplicity. (G. & U.)

IT'S A WISE CHILD, ETC. Mrs. Ethel Wallace of San Francisco, and Ethel La Varon, 7, over whose marriage Mrs. Wallace may have to submit to a handwriting test. Says child is born by first husband. Second hubby says she is his.

DR. JOH. A. MOJEN of Norway postulates to "tell the world" that he thinks the burlesque of an American woman should be cut short. Here attending Eugene's congress. (K.)

RUTH W. WHALEY of Goldboro, N. C., graduate of Livingston College, is now the first negro girl student at Fordham Law School. She is a remarkably brilliant scholar. Parents are both teachers. (Int.)

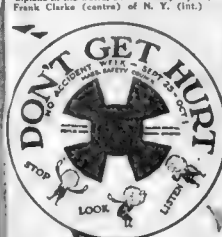

"JAIL BAIT," the smallest successful biplane in the world, and its intrepid pilot, Frank Clarke (centre) of N. Y. (Int.)

DADDY OF 'EM ALL! This 17½-inch sunflower, grown by A. B. Silvery of Middlebury, Ct., and exhibited here by his pretty little daughter, Augustine Clark Silvery, is the largest ever brought to our attention. Can you beat it? That poor Los Angeles flower has lost its reputation now.

WASH YOUR STEP! That is, if it has a carpet on it—and save time with this recently invented rug washer. It looks and operates much like an ordinary vacuum cleaner. A solution of hot water and pure soap is placed in the container and electrically heated. By means of a series of sponges and a squeezing rod the rug is cleaned. The object is left almost dry by the process. It is operated simply and is said to be very effective. (K.)

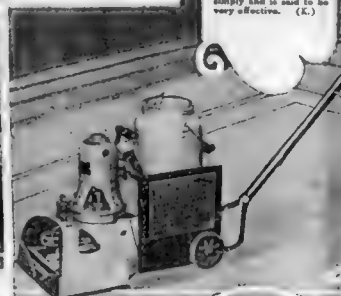

TAKE CARE! Did you get your "don't get hurt" warning with this a. m.'s milk? The above milk cap is being distributed through all the large companies in the Safety Council's drive for fewer accidents. Ninety per cent. of all accidents are avoidable. Be careful!

FOR SWEET CHARITY! Miss Ova Robins of 29 Cleveland Ave., Allston, always an active worker in the Boston American's charitable projects, has agreed to dance for many worthy charities this fall.

HERE CHICK, CHICK, CHICK! Mrs. Rover, she of the limber face and long downy ears, took pity on these little orphaned chickens and took them "under her wing." Is the pet of a N. Y. household. (K.)

WHEN DAN SHEA, now American deathless champion, isn't running to a fun he's usually running in some sport mask. The intrepid N. Y. fire brigade won the honor at Preakness Field, Jersey City. (Int.)

SOME WHATSABY! Concessionary Beauty of San Francisco is not 2 years old, yet she can swim the crawl stroke splendidly, and dive and play under 15 feet of water. The child, considered the cleverest child ever known, is 8½ years old in the country, was discovered by Mrs. Myrtle Wright, a professional swimmer. (Int.)

A FISH STORY! Perhaps a better caption would have been a whale of a yarn—but it's really a whale of a fish, photographically speaking. This poor chap, if we dared believe the photograph, is a fair way to become another Jack. Actually, then, is a trick photograph. Photographs of this kind are made by two methods. Two separate plates, one representing the man in the boat, and the other, the fish, are printed together. The more common method would be to paste up a small picture of the man in the boat on a large picture of the fish. That is probably how this one was made.

CRIMSON-PURPLE GAME B. C. LINE NOT UP TO CAV'S STANDARD

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

College football shifts into high gear tomorrow afternoon. All teams whose schedules got underway last week, and virtually all those whose schedule-makers delayed their start, are booked for action, and thrills galore seem assured to the hundreds of thousands of grateful enthusiasts who perch the stands or the stadiums of approximately 20 per cent of the college gridiron of this nation.

Greater Boston has drawn the full share, and then some, as the post might say, in addition to the thrills of the game, the excitement of the Harvard-Yale game at Harvard, and the excitement of the Harvard-Yale game at Harvard.

The first of the season, however, to be played here is expected at Cambridge, Mass., and it will be played on the Harvard-Yale game at Harvard, and the excitement of the Harvard-Yale game at Harvard.

The second of the season is expected at Cambridge, Mass., and it will be played on the Harvard-Yale game at Harvard, and the excitement of the Harvard-Yale game at Harvard.

The third of the season is expected at Cambridge, Mass., and it will be played on the Harvard-Yale game at Harvard, and the excitement of the Harvard-Yale game at Harvard.

FOOTBALL PRIMER

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Those who went over yesterday's chapter of the "Football Primer," may have arrived at the conclusion the attacking team enjoys a tremendously one-sided advantage over the defending team.

Such would be the case were it not for the fact the rules of the game have been drawn up for the express purpose of equalizing the attack and the defense.

Generally speaking, the defending team may conduct itself about as it chooses within the bounds of what is known as the "line of scrimmage." The attacking team is not allowed to cross the line of scrimmage until the ball is snapped.

And, on forward pass plays made by the attacking team, the defending players are not allowed to interfere in any way with men who have crossed the scrimmage line, until after the ball is caught, except in an attempt to catch or bat the ball.

At the start of each play at least seven of the eleven players must be positioned on the line of scrimmage, and only one of the remaining four may be in motion before the snap.

Some of the attacking players may encroach upon the neutral zone until the ball is put in play.

None may use their hands upon the defending players, nor trip, strike or hold them, except in the case of the line.

GIANTS WILL DEFEAT YANKEES, RUTH IS TOLD BY OUIJA BOARD

By BABE RUTH.

New York, Sept. 30.—The Yankees have had enough to put them in the league again, I don't want to aggravate the condition although I fear the following will produce a lot of headaches.

Regardless of my heart-breaking fits with Cleveland, the "ouija board" is as follows:

1.—The Yankees will win the pennant.

2.—The Yankees will lose the World Series to the Giants.

In order not to be misinterpreted by Judge Landis or the public at large, let me explain. The "ouija board" means the ouija board.

When I don't believe the prediction of the World Series, let me put down one more prophecy that has come true.

We asked the ouija board who would win the important and final game in the recent Cleveland series, and answer came "who ever will win by six."

At every other game, the game on Monday with the Indians was captured by one run in a nerve-racking battle. That part of the prediction worked all right, but the ouija board didn't count.

We play the Giants we go up against a tough club but there are some things that Cleveland and certainly lose an game as the series would change.

I'm not sure, I'm satisfied as to where the Yankees will stand after the World Series as I am in doubt out where the New York fans will be for the rest of the season.

The thirty thousand fans who came to the victory over Cleveland Monday screamed, but as happily when the score board showed the Giants going ahead of the Cardinals in St. Louis.

There has never been any way of judging the relative popularity of the two New York clubs. Thousands of fans have been seen going to see the Yankees at the Polo Grounds where the Giants are in the city. It is one thing to see the Yankees at the Polo Grounds and another to see the Yankees at the Polo Grounds.

I don't mind seeing the Yankees at the Polo Grounds, but I don't mind seeing the Yankees at the Polo Grounds.

There are at least three big boys hustling to have the leading pitcher in the league besides the best young twirler in the majors.

Bob Meusel can electrify the bleachers with his throwing.

Elmer Miller, in center field, has been the best punch third baseman in the league.

But the fans on take Yankee club, not overlooking the old-time hero of the fans, the Yankees.

In the Yankees' 1917 world championship, the old-time hero of the fans, the Yankees, was the best pitcher in the league.

Christy Mathewson ruled Manhattan. We realize how prices, the

WORLD'S SERIES GAMES FOR NEW YORK

All Battles Between Giants and Yankees on the Historic Polo Grounds

New York, Sept. 30.—The World Series will be staged exclusively on Manhattan Island. Yesterday the Giants clinched the National League pennant through the defeat of Pittsburgh at the hands of the Cardinals, and the Yankees trounced the Athletics while the lovely White Sox escaped the Cleveland Indians.

That the Yankees are "in" is a conclusion reached by the majority, although old mathematical possibility claims that the Indians still have a chance. The Huggins men now figure at 100 to 1 to win the pennant.

The Giants have four games to play and if they lose all, while Pittsburgh takes all of its remaining games, the first of all will read:

WALKER, FRENCH BARNES AND HAGEN WIN

Four Reach Semi-Finals in the Professional Golfers' Championship

Far Rockaway, N. Y., Sept. 30.—Cyril Walker, professional golfer at Englewood, N. J., waited Guga Sarazen out of a golf match in the third round for the professional golfers' association championship.

Walker is probably the slowest player in America. His snail's pace got on the nerves of the twenty-year-old Titusville, Pa., golfer and he could not make his shots come off.

But Walker took him yesterday by a five and four score.

Walker met Walter Hagen in the semi-finals today. Hagen beat John Golden of Toledo, 8 and 7.

Other semi-finalists are Jim Barnes and Kenneth French. Barnes beat Freddy McLeod 10 and 9, and French beat George McLean 5 and 4.

YANKS NEED JUST ONE MORE TO CLINCH FLAG IN PENNANT RACE

Philadelphia, Sept. 30.—Miller Huggins' Yankees were within a game of the American League pennant when they rose from their "downer" today. One more victory will insure the Yankees of entry into the World Series. It does not matter whether the Yankees win or the Indians lose, but as soon as either eventuality is accomplished New York will have a corner on the World Series.

The Yankees are serious about this pennant winning thing. They realize that they are on the threshold of an accomplishment that New York American League Club owners have spent hundreds of thousands of dollars to achieve, and they were prepared to go into today's game with chips on both shoulders.

Carl May, the story book of the "Tanks" pick up start, was expected to take the mound against the Athletics with slanty or knuckleballing opposing him.

Babe Ruth, who was kept in bed by his physical yesterday, thanks to a slight attack of grip, was expected to show up in time for today's game. His latest in the coming World Series, even in Philadelphia, with nothing better to look of than a pair of tail-end nicks.

Indians Still Hopeful of Heading Off Yanks

Chicago, Sept. 30.—Ten speakers today in the Cleveland stadium of the Indians hoped to convince the Yankee owners that the Indians were

Skinny Is Getting Wise

What Makes a Nation

Residents of America, Native or Foreign Born, Voters or Not, Ought to Read, Write and Speak the Language

Former Vice-President Marshall, addressing the people gathered at the Kingston Fair in Rhode Island, said: "I would permit no man or woman, not a full American citizen, who does not read, write or speak the English language, to vote in this country."

We don't know why Mr. Marshall made an exception of the full American citizen. If by a full American citizen he means a man or woman who was born in this country, we should think that the disability of such a person's not being able to read, write or speak the English language would be greater and more disqualifying than the inability of a foreigner. Such an inability would be greater evidence of that lack of intelligence and character, on account of which we disqualify from voting our minors, our insane and our criminals, though they be born in America.

We agree entirely with that sentiment which grew up so strongly out of the war that those who cannot read and write and speak the English language ought not to vote. It is scarcely necessary to present the reasons for this opinion. But it is necessary to convey to those who are most enthusiastically in favor of disqualifying residents of America upon this ground the sense that when we establish that disqualification we should establish correlatively the duty to do everything we can, not only to make it easy, but to COMPEL those within the country who are born here or are immigrants to learn to speak, read and write the English language and to understand our institutions.

It is our duty to do this, because we cannot afford, if we wish a stable democracy, to have a great mass of submerged human beings without political rights, without a voice in the government of the country. We must have no holes in America if we would have a stable, secure and real democracy.

If anyone doubts the danger of having in our midst a great mass of people who are not voters, who have no voice in the government, and therefore no power to protect their rights, you have only to consider what happens in the regions where the mass of the people are foreigners without the right to vote, when a strike occurs. Under such circumstances, the government of the region is in the hands of a small, controlled minority, who ride roughshod over the constitutional rights of the foreigner who cannot vote. He has no voice in the election of these petty officials and thus he is denied even the most elementary constitutional rights which our forefathers intended to throw around all residents of America, whether they be citizens or strangers.

Democracy does not come to us through the form of government. It is much more in a state of mind than in a formal charter. The people of England have no written Constitution. You ask an English lawyer where his Constitution is and he will tell you, off-hand, that it is in a long series of acts of Parliament. But in reality, it is in the slow development of political psychology on the part of the English people. It is in the slow development of their notion of what constitutes a popular control of a proper state which constitutes the form of government in England. On the other hand, our written Constitution, copied blindly by turbulent South American States, absolutely failed to give them anything like our government.

So when we see every day the liberties of the citizen being denied in West Virginia, in Lawrence, in Pennsylvania, in Colorado, in Seattle, we get accustomed to it, and we are permitting to be destroyed in our own midst that conception of a government which constitutes two-thirds of the freedom which we enjoy. Without a change in our Constitution or in our laws, we could soon become, by the wretchedness of their administration, the most contemptible tyranny in the world.

And the thing which tempts more than anything else to a bad administration of law is the existence of a helpless body of people who cannot defend themselves against the natural aggressions and rapacity of a minority.

Human Brain and Coal Mines

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

For 6,000,000 years, during the carboniferous period, the tree ferns dropped their pollen dust to the earth, forming coal beds, which now cook our dinners and incidentally make J. Pierpont so prosperous.

Good deed of useless anxiety has been devoted to the questions: Will we freeze, or begin planting huge forests of wood, or what?

In the first place, coal will not give out for a long, long time. In the second place, its disappearance will not make the slightest difference, for in a few cubic inches of the human brain nature has stored up treasures greater than all those hidden in the depths of the earth. The creation of the human brain took more years than the creation of the coal fields, but the brain's resources are inexhaustible.

A German workman now comes along who has discovered a chemical substitute for coal, better than coal in many ways, and before this German shall have been dead many years some other will find a further substitute for coal, better and cheaper than his. There is endless heat power in the action of the tides, in the rush of Niagara, in the winds, and in endless chemical combinations. Heat is motion, and the Universe is motion. Men will soon cease lighting their pipes to obtain crude heat in a crude way. Electricity or the sun's own rays, concentrated for heating purposes, will do the work without any digging in mines by men or delving in caves and clinkers by women.

The story of antiquity, more or less fanciful, of the burning of a fleet with oil of glass and the umbrellas, will be matter-of-fact reality long before the coal shall have been exhausted.

STUDY SOMETHING WORTH. Have you ever thought of riding yourself of the rubbish in your mind—the rubbish in your daily life which takes up time and attention and which does you no good?

How many hours a day do you spend word gathering, waiting time? Suppose you spend that time in broadening out, making yourself bigger and better, more able to fill an important place in the world. You'll find that you can't fill the same space at the same time.

If you are filling your mind with rubbish, there is no place for anything else.

Are you progressing on rubbish, or waiting time and energy? If you are not getting along, it is a reason, and you can usually find the reason at your own door.

Why talk and think twaddle when you can get a lot more fun out of knowing and expressing the thoughts which will make the big man pick you up to serve a bigger purpose?

University's Head Scored

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, Sept. 29.—Dr. Jose Vasconcelos, rector of the National University, who has won a reputation for fearlessness in uttering whatever he believed to be true, is facing a storm of criticism because of his dismissal from the university faculty of Professor Antonio Ramos Padua.

Dr. Vasconcelos decided that Professor Ramos Padua could not remain as instructor of students because of an address delivered by the professor on the life of Emperor Iturbide. He condemned the address as "monarchistic and reactionary" and elected Professor Ramos Padua with very little ceremony.

As the rector has been frequently under attack for expressing his mind, his critics assert that he should have dealt less summarily with his subordinate.

Iturbide, a daring young general of the Mexican revolution, who forced Governor-General O'Donoghue to sign the treaty in which Spain recognized the independence of the Mexican Republic, made himself Emperor in 1821 and was eventually shot for venturing back to Mexico after he had been expelled by the stern republicans.

"Monarchistic action, stirred the resentment of the students. They held a mass meeting, at which speeches in condemnation of the action of Dr. Vasconcelos were made. They also paraded the streets, calling for the return of the exiled Professor Ramos Padua.

Joe joined him, and the two ex-doubtfuls were soon deep in the controversy which raged around the name of the devoted Marcella.

After a time Jim raised his voice for peace, while he told why he, like Margery, sided with Marcella.

"You say Marcella is good-humored," he started. "You say that is a good deal. The man or woman or girl who can keep a smile on her face and a cool tongue in the little struggle of everyday life is well worth studying. The thing which carried many a man through the war was just a determined kind of good humor. You may not think it, but you may be sure there are times when Marcella feels like giving war to the devil."

"Oh, no, Jim—not that! Marcella was too temperate."

"I DON'T care for Marcella," declared Joyce. "You all make such a time over Marcella, and I can't help to keep it up."

We all were shocked by this declaration of Joyce. Marcella is the comeliest of comings and adored by the whole circle. At first we couldn't think how to dispute with Joyce over our favorite. But at last one of us spoke:

"Marcella is the most good-humored girl in the world, and you all will have to admit that."

"Admitted," said Joyce, "but what of that? Marcella has every reason to be good-natured. She is good looking, has perfect health, her work just suits her—in neither too hard nor too easy—and everyone likes her. No wonder she has a smile for everyone and a good word for even the bill collector."

A Difference of Opinion

"But she runs so him and she has no bill collector," objected Margery.

"I mean she would smile on him if she ever had one to call on her," declared back Joyce.

Letter to the Editor

Invisible Government

Editor Boston American:

From time to time I have noted with interest certain statements in your "Today" column, or inferences to be drawn therefrom respecting business conditions. You appear to have courses which others lack in discussing government conditions and government functions.

I therefore suggest a discussion or a commentary on the Invisible Government Department of the business of the country that administration men like Mr. Lodge, and even the President himself, seem to be afraid that the Invisible Government forces of the country are going too far in causing artificial business depression, however much the President and Mr. Lodge may be in sympathy with the ultimate object of these forces.

Cannot something be done to bring about such publicity that our government will operate the Federal Reserve Bank in the interest of the people instead of by and for the steering department governing forces, permit the administration to enact an equitable revision of our national taxation system, a consumers' and producers' tariff and give the boys who offered their lives and their blood for the sake of their country some fair compensation for the risks they took and the financial losses they suffered while the profiteers were rolling up their millions at the expense of the country?

Everyday citizen who is still suffering from the system which they enter the country have evolved in business and in finance.

JAMES J. IRWIN.

NO TIME FOR PARLEY. Her father suddenly appeared and filled them both with wild alarm.

"This conference, it seems to me, has lasted long enough," said he. "Will you young people please disarm?"

A HELPFUL GIRL. "Why don't you let your daughter assume some of your household duties?" asked Jim.

"She is old enough to be a great help to you."

"Oh, she isn't old enough to have to clean up after her when she makes fudge now."

CITIES TEND TO MAKE OUR LIFE HUMAN

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

God made the country and Man made the city. So they say.

Perhaps that is equivalent to saying that, out of the raw material which he found, man made the big aggregation of human beings, earth, stone, metal and humans, which we call a City.

The race has been long engaged in this process. The big city is the big aggregation of human beings, earth, stone, metal and humans, which we call a City.

But there never have been so many cities as there are today. The cities of our present time are the cities of the future.

And man is rather proud of his work. Almost he is inclined to pronounce over it the creative word: Behold, it is good!

Several words of our familiar English speech, and some derived from the older Latin, tell the story of our place in the city and in city life.

An Equivalent

And, especially, by contrasting contemptuousness for country life and country conditions. The American is the one who is the rural type as a Rule or Fiction, is only up-to-date equivalent for similarly disrespectful ancient epithets.

For instance, the words barren and heathen are, respectively, Latin and Anglo-Saxon terms meaning, literally, the dweller in the country or on the heath.

It is that plethoric "superior" succession, the modern city dweller, presumably the supporter of all kinds of convention and orthodoxy, has, under the mischievous influence of the city, developed harmless characteristics of countrymen into opprobrious epithets.

Today it actually requires some courage to accept the names barren and heathen, because they have gradually been made the synonyms for barbarism and archaism.

It would be worth-while to re-examine their etymology, and to see how they have been used since the time of their original relation with God, the Maker of the country.

With self-gratifying contrast, the words urban and urbane have served as synonyms for polish and accomplishment and general "arrival" at all desirable human ends.

Personal Pride

Another personal pride which we feel for our cities—especially when we are away from them—is, it may be said, the pride of the city.

Hardly a citizen of Boston, New York, Washington, Atlanta, Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles or Oklahoma—who has not heard of the city of his birth, though he himself had built it up.

And yet the inner meaning of the word is vanity, is pride, is nothing more than the feeling of one's self from oblivion, by identification with something so successful, so large and lasting—thus giving one a local habitation and a name.

But, to say the word for the sake of the influence of our life, we must not forget the city.

First of all and foremost, the city is the place where the elements are closest. It is the place where the elements are closest. It is the place where the elements are closest.

MOTIONS OF EARTH THAT ARE LITTLE KNOWN

By Garrett P. Servis

I have three large scrapbooks filled with your articles, which I would not sell for $100 apiece. Now I am in quest of some information which I cannot find in works of astronomy or in any article of yours that I have seen.

How many motions and movements has the earth? I read in Popular Astronomy the other day that it has five, but I have a vague recollection of reading somewhere that there are about a dozen of them.—H. H. H. Richmond, Va.

THE earth has so many movements of one kind or another that it would probably be impossible to enumerate them all. There are no doubt some of which we are unaware.

The principle ones, however, are very evident, although the relative motion tends to disguise their real nature. They may be divided under four different heads. First, there are the motions of the earth as a whole—i. e., as an individual body, the results of which are to change its place in space with respect to other bodies, such as the sun and the stars.

Revolution Around the Sun

The most familiar of these motions is the revolution around the sun, performed once every year. Everybody is made aware of this motion by the changes of season that it causes. Yet if the earth's axis stood upright to the plane of its orbit about the sun there would be no changing seasons, but only one season all the year round, and then only a casual variation of the other heavenly bodies would reveal the fact that the earth revolved around the sun.

A second motion of the earth as a whole is its rotation on its axis. This motion is concealed from ordinary observation just because of the lack of any conspicuous motion of the earth upon it. This is the earth's share of the so-called "proper motion" or "intrinsic motion" of the stars.

This motion, which is generally called the rotation of the earth, is a motion in what seems a straight line, which happens to be directed a few degrees aside from the bright star Vega in the northern hemisphere. It is not to be confused with the motion of the earth about the sun, which is a motion of the earth about the sun, which is a motion of the earth about the sun.

The three motions just mentioned may be called the three primary motions of the earth, and these are all subject to variations and modifications which might be treated as more or less independent, thus extending the list of motions of the earth to a very large number. For instance, the variations of the earth's axis are of two kinds: one is a slight wobble, which is a slight wobble, which is a slight wobble.

Another motion of the earth is its rotation on its axis. This motion is concealed from ordinary observation just because of the lack of any conspicuous motion of the earth upon it. This is the earth's share of the so-called "proper motion" or "intrinsic motion" of the stars.

Another motion of the earth is its rotation on its axis. This motion is concealed from ordinary observation just because of the lack of any conspicuous motion of the earth upon it. This is the earth's share of the so-called "proper motion" or "intrinsic motion" of the stars.

This motion, which is generally called the rotation of the earth, is a motion in what seems a straight line, which happens to be directed a few degrees aside from the bright star Vega in the northern hemisphere. It is not to be confused with the motion of the earth about the sun, which is a motion of the earth about the sun.

The three motions just mentioned may be called the three primary motions of the earth, and these are all subject to variations and modifications which might be treated as more or less independent, thus extending the list of motions of the earth to a very large number. For instance, the variations of the earth's axis are of two kinds: one is a slight wobble, which is a slight wobble, which is a slight wobble.
